OVERVIEW

This program provides a comprehensive examination of current issues affecting pre-teens and teenagers on the Internet. It is a detailed conversation about the serious issues online and the concepts for dealing with them. During the presentation, we will briefly address sexual predators online and then focus on social networking, responsible use by teenagers, as well as sexting, cyberbullying, general solutions, and best practices. There will be time allotted at the conclusion of the presentation for questions from the audience.

PRESENTER

Detective Sgt. James Calaski

An officer with the Glen Rock Police Department since February 2000, Detective Sgt. Calaski served eight years in the Patrol Division before being appointed to the Detective Bureau. He currently serves as the Bureau supervisor. He previously served with the Glen Rock Auxiliary Police for two years. He has received numerous awards and citations for outstanding service in law enforcement. In addition to his municipal police duties, Detective Sgt. Calaski served 10 years on the Bergen County Rapid Deployment Force, has served on the Bergen County Prosecutor's Office Computer Crimes Task Force since 2007, and was a member of the Bergen County Prosecutor's Office Multijurisdictional Heroin Task Force for three years.
